

EDUCATIONAL DELIVERY METHODS

Keep participants engaged.

To facilitate an adult learning, a variety of educational methods linked to previously identified learning needs and objectives should be used. No matter which methodologies are used in content delivery, incorporating interactivity is essential.

Actively engaging participants in the content allows them to frame the topic within their own context. Instead of information merely being transmitted, the learner acquires and links new knowledge to his/her current theoretical knowledge and experience in practice.

Listed below are a number of educational delivery options:

- Plenary sessions
- Small group sessions
- Roundtables
- Workshops
- Break-out sessions
- Debates
- Online programs (with interaction between participants and faculty)

All educational delivery methods should ensure there is an element of interactive accounting for at least 25 percent of the event session.
